Sub: Merger and future of UMS Santragachi
Ref: Meeting with Guardians at school on December 31, 2016

Dear all,

Wishing you a Happy New Year.

The school authorities wish to announce that in keeping with precedence followed in similar situations and communicated vide similar notices earlier, it has been decided that the school will be merging with The Narayana School, Andul, from the next academic session i.e. April 2017.

This decision had to be taken as it no longer viable to run the unit at the present campus with the number of children dwindling every year.

Those who would like to avail the merger offer can send their wards to the Narayana School, Andul, from the new session and all admission formalities will be taken care of by us. Interested guardians are requested to get in touch with the UMS school office for further details.

Guardians are also requested to consider the option of sending their children to any of the other Usha Martin Schools and they will be absorbed as per existing rules where no admission fees will be charged.

Guardians, who are not keen to opt for any of the choices mentioned above, can have their children admitted to any other school of their choice within the Howrah district and the Admission Fee part will be reimbursed post presentation of valid and relevant documents.

Thanking you in anticipation and looking forward to your continued support.

Yours sincerely,

Principal
Usha Martin School, Santragachi
